The City & Surrounding Community

Lamar, Colorado (pop. 7,591), the Prowers County county seat (pop. 11,854), is located in southeast Colorado at the Junction of U.S. Highways 50, 287 and 350. At a crossroads even before its founding, the Santa Fe Trail Northern Route passed by to the north, and the adjacent Arkansas River made the area a hospitable site for Native Americans. Today, Lamar still sits on a prominent transportation route; situated half-way between Denver and Dallas, it is an ideal location for transportation and warehousing businesses. The Ports to Plains Corridor from Mexico to Canada and the Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railroad line with Amtrak commercial rail service, both run through the area. Finally, the Southeastern Colorado Regional Airport serves the seven-county region and can accommodate a variety of business, executive and private aircraft.

Serving as an economic hub in Southeast Colorado, areas of Western Kansas, and the panhandles of Texas and Oklahoma, Lamar is positioned for growth. True to its claim, Lamar really is “in the middle of everything” and is “open for business.”

Agriculture is the area’s primary economic driver; the manufacturing, service, tourism, health, and education sectors also play a significant role. Families enjoy an excellent school district, and have access to the Lamar Community College, which serves a four-county region with general education and career/tech education programs. Lamar is home to many retail, restaurant, and banking institutions, as well as multiple health & wellness organizations, including Prowers Medical Center, High Plains Community Health Center, Valley-wide Health Systems, and Prowers County Department of Health, creating a local health network.

Local amenities include parks, a baseball/softball complex, municipal swimming pool, nine-hole golf course, public library, movie/performance theater, and a bowling alley. The town recently completed a major Great Outdoors Colorado (GoCO) lottery-funded grant that made major improvements to outdoor spaces; it created a wheels park for biking and skating and a seven-mile walking trail, as well as a new beach, shelters, and other amenities at the North Gateway Park. Locals and visitors also appreciate the outdoors, nature and history. Attractions include the Arkansas River, the John Martin Reservoir, and several historic sites, including the Santa Fe Trail.

Lamar is attractive for those who enjoy a smaller, tight-knit and vibrant community, an affordable rural lifestyle, and salt-of-the-earth friends and neighbors. You will not find a community with more compassion, loyalty, and heart.
